

Introducing Wealden

Covering 323 square miles, Wealden is the largest district in East Sussex, and is home to some 140,000 people. Half the population live in five main towns: Crowborough, Hailsham, Heathfield, Polegate and Uckfield. The rest live in villages and hamlets in some of the most attractive countryside in the South of England.

Its many responsibilities include housing, planning, building control, waste collection, recycling, emergency planning and economic regeneration.

With two-thirds the district covered by the High Weald and Sussex Downs Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty, as well as 34 conservation areas and over 2,500 listed buildings, Wealden has to place a high value on protecting the countryside.

Our four objectives:

- To protect and enhance a sustainable environment.
- To promote a healthier and safer community.
- To develop a more prosperous and sustainable local economy.
- To strive for excellence.
